

of money on security, the same being refunded by weekly instalments of one shilling in the pound. A charitable society has an establishment for the distribution of flax, wheels, &c. which is the source of infinite benefit to the labouring classes; it is supported by subscriptions. The county infirmary is an ornament to the town, and the new court house and prison under one roof is a handsome stone building, eligibly situated on the Green; it was erected in 1818. Cashel contains a barrack for two companies of foot, and a handsome market house, both situated in the Main-street. The archbishop's palace is a spacious structure situated in the centre of the town, and the gardens attached to it extend to the foot of the rock. This is a very ancient episcopal city to which the bishopric of Euly is united; it was either founded or restored at the beginning of the 10th century; the ruins of the old cathedral testify its having been an extensive as well as handsome structure, boldly towering on the celebrated rock of Cashel. Adjoining the cathedral are the ruins of Cormac's chapel, built in 901 by Cormac Mac Cullinan, at once king and archbishop of Cashel, who, it is supposed, erected the round tower, which stands upon the top of the rock. This is by some considered to have been the first stone building in Ireland, but it is doubtful if there are not earlier evidences of masonry in this kingdom; it seems to have been copied after the Grecian architecture, and long to have preceded that, which is usually called Gothic. The tower is lofty and defied the too successful attempts of archbishop Price, who, in the present century, unroofed, and thereby demolished, the ancient and venerable cathedral, which had been erected by St. Patrick. On the ascent to the cathedral is a stone, on which, according to tradition, the kings here were crowned; for this was formerly the royal seat and metropolis of the kings of Munster. Cashel is under the patronage of Richard Pennefather, Esq. The fairs are on the 26th of March and 7th of August. The market-days are Wednesday and Saturday.—The population is estimated at about 5000.

IN the county of Limerick, is a neat village on the banks of the river Shaanon; it is situated two miles to the left of the main road from Limerick to Dublin, at a distance of six miles from the former place, and 90 from the latter. It possesses a neat church, and contains the ruins of a very ancient castle, formerly one of the strong holds of the O'Briens. About two miles from this place is O'Brien's bridge, a very singular structure of 14 arches, no two of which are turned alike. Castle Connell is the residence of the Earl of Clare who possesses a spacious domain, in the neighbourhood; it is also the seat of Lord Massy.

CASTLE-LYONS,

ANCIENTLY called Castle Lehan, from the river Bride. The ruins of an old abbey of Franciscans, founded in 1307, are still to be seen. On its dissolution it was granted to the Earl of Cork, who assigned it to his son-in-law, David, first Earl of Barrymore. On the ruins of O'Lehan's Castle stood the town, pleasantly situated in a fertile valley, near the
