MIDDLETON,

Is a neat, market, post and fair town in the county of Cork, situated upon the main road from Waterford to Cork, at a distance of one hundred and thirty seven miles from Dublin, and on the north-west angle of Cork harbour. It was a borough previous to the union, and gives the title of viscount to the family of Broderick. The town is governed by a sovereign, two bailiffs, and twelve burgesses. Here is a good building ornamented with a cupola and clock, the gift of Lord Middleton; in the upper part the town business is transacted, and the lower is used as a market-house. At the public free-school, which has been suffered to fall to decay, some of the greatest characters in the kingdom have received the first rudiments of their education, among others, the celebrated Curran. The old church is removed, and on its site a new one is erecting, entirely of limestone, which is calculated to hold six hundred persons. Here was also, some few years ago, a most extensive manufactory for fine and superfine cloths, which employed a great number of hands; but the spirited proprietor, Marcus Lynch, esq, not being able to compete with the English manufacturers, the undertaking was relinquished, and government bought the premises for 20,000*l.* and converted them into barracks. They have been since purchased by Lord Middleton. An abbey was founded here by the Fitzgeralds in the year 1180, for monks of the Cistercian order. Near the town are a subterranean river, and a large romantic cave well worthy the attention of the curious. The market day is Saturday, and there are four annual fairs, viz.—on the 14th of May, the 5th of July, the 10th of October and the 22nd of November. Middleton consists of a union of five parishes, the total population of which is 10,047.

POST OFFICE.—Post Master, Mr. J. Brabazon. The Dublin & English Mails arrive at half-past seven in the evening, via Waterford, and the Cork Mail is despatched immediately after. The Dublin and English Mails leave at half-past six in the morning, and the letter-box closes half an hour before.

MILLSTREET,

IN the county of Cork, is distant 115 miles south west of Dublin, 29 west north west of Cork, 17 and a half west south west of Mallow, and 11 north west of Macroom. It is a smart little town, and a considerable thoroughfare between the counties of Cork and Kerry. It has a handsome church, of which the Rev. J. C. Mougan is the vicar, and the Roman Catholics have also an excellent chapel. The barracks accommodate two companies of foot, and a market house will shortly be erected under the direction of Captain Wallis. The linen manufacture has been introduced here, and is carried on by Nicholas Leader esq. in the vicinity of the town. Mill-street, being built on an eminence, commands a beautiful and extensive prospect of the surrounding country, which is luxuriant and richly varied. Coal mines are worked at no great distance, and, it is hoped, they will prove a source of considerable profit to the undertakers, as well as a relief to the labouring class of society.

 No market is kept, though there is a patent for one on Friday. Fairs are held on the first of March, the first and 12th of June, the first and 12th of September, and the first and 12th of December.
