BAILIEBOROUGH

Is a market and fair town, situated in a valley in the county of Cavan and province of Ulster, 42 miles north-west of Dublin, six north-east of Virginia, and 10 south of Cootehill. It has a small, but neat church, and a Catholic chapel, and at the distance of one mile and a half is a Presbyterian meeting-house. A sessions'-house has been erected here about three years, where the sessions are held twice a year; a market-house was also built in 1818, and a Dispensary, erected by private subscription, was opened in March 1806. The market, which is one of the largest for provisions in the northern part of Ireland, is held on Monday. The fairs are on February 17th, May 17th, June 15th, August 17th, October 14th, and November the 17th.—The population is upwards of 700.

POST OFFICE.—Post Master, Mr. Charles Egan. The Dublin mail is despatched at half-past two in the afternoon, and arrives at half-past ten in the morning in the winter; in summer it leaves at four in the afternoon, and arrives at nine in the morning. A by-mail goes to Kells with the Dublin mail. Letters for England and Scotland go by the same mail.

AUGHNACLOY,

A Post, market, and fair town in the county of Tyrone, consists of one street, and is seventy miles north-north-west of Dublin, eight east of Clogher, nine south-west of Dungannon, thirteen north-west of Armagh, and fifteen south-east of Omagh. In the middle of the town stands the parish church, a handsome edifice with a spire and a good clock, and nearly opposite is the market-house, which is going into decay. Besides the church there is a Catholic chapel, with a large Presbyterian meeting-house, two Methodist preaching houses, a corn mill and flax mill. The market is held on Wednesday, and there are fairs on the first Wednesday in every month. The population is about 1800.

POST OFFICE.—Post Master, Mr. Rowland Betty. The Dublin Mail is despatched at thirty-five minutes past three in the afternoon, and arrives at ten in the morning; the Londonderry mail at ten in the morning; the Dungannon mail at forty-five minutes past three in the afternoon; the Clogher and Enniskillen mails immediately after the arrival of the Dublin mail; and the Armagh mail at six minutes before three in the afternoon. Letters for England go by the Dublin mail; those for Scotland by the Dungannon mail.
