all John's post, and fair town in the county and, is situated seventy-two miles south of Dublin, and twelve east of Wexford. The town has a crane for the weight and measure, at which the merchants of Wexford assemble every Monday and Thursday during the season, which continues about seven months in the year. There is a small and neat stone bridge that has lately been built about four or five miles from the town, where the Sunday school is held during the winter months, the number of children that attend is about 100, and they are taught by the Rev. John, the present curate of the parish.

THOMASTOWN

County of Wick, is a small market, and is situated in the deer park, fifty-eight miles from Dublin, four miles from Knock and four miles from Kilkenny. It has a church with a tower and one bell, which has been built about six years, the old one has been decayed. The handsome Roman Catholic church, with a tower and bell, and is believed to be one of the finest that has a tower. The Earl is building a free parochial school for the parish, which is expected to be finished in the summer of 1824, and for which he has and century, and sent members to parliament.

The public buildings of this place consist of a church, which is a modern building, the parish chapel, the court house, which is a handsome building, the gaol, in which the prisoners are employed at a tread mill, which throws water into the parts of the prison. In a commanding situation stands the pillar erected by the county in 1817 to the memory of the Duke of Wellington; it is of great height and is in the Corinthian order. The incorporated parish of Dublin have a school here for the education of the poor. The sessions and assizes are held twice a year. There is a good market on Saturdays.
The fairs are kept in the year, viz: on the 27th of May, the 8th of June, the 3rd of July, the 1st of August, and the 10th of November. Population about Thomas Thornbury. The Dublin mail arrives from Waterford at half-past three in the afternoon and is despatched at half-past three in the afternoon for Dublin.
